SOUREZING THE PARMERS,

The Duty on Sulphuric Acid and Its Effect on Agriculturists,

From the Chicago Herald.
The sympanthy which the Republican tariff tinkers on the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives show for the farmers is not more thoroughly exemplified in any part of the McKinley bill than in those clauses which place a duty of one-quar ter of a cent a pound on sulphuric acid Whether the circumstance is well known or not among agriculturists, the fact remains that the acid is the most important constituent in the manufac-will tend to increase the price of the acid will certainly increase that of the fertilizers. Thus the farmer is again made to suffer by his so-called friends, who also want him to pay higher prices

This attempt to increase the price of sulphuric acid is due entirely to a well-known combination made up of manufacturers of chemicals, who subscribed liberally to the success of the Republican protectionists in the campaign of 1888. The increase in the cost of fertilizers, if full advantage of the duty should be taken by a combination con-trolling the domestic supply, would be about $2 a ton. It is calculated that 800,000 tons of fertilizers were used in the country in 1889.

The farmers, who are pushed to the utmost to make any money out of their crops even under the present conditions, may be required to pay $1,600,000 a year more in order that the members of the combination may grow wealthier. The proportion of increase would be

WOODBURY WHEELER,

He Says the Ex-President Was Quoted Correctly-Editor Dana Referred to in Blank Terms Which Were

Not Published. Mr. F. C. Crawford, the reporter who interviewed ex-President Cleveland and brought about the triangular fight between the latter, the World and Sun of New York, has furnished a statement of his side of the case for publication in the current number of Frank Leslie's Weekin

Mr. Crawford starts off by saying: 'Grover Cleveland has, I believe, seen fit to deny certain portions of the interview with him published in the World of Thursday, April 17. He declares that he never used the violent and intemperate language ascribed to him in speaking of Mr. Dana. In view of Mr. Cleveland's denial, it seems to me that the writer of the interview should be permitted to state his side of the case. My own reputation is as dear to me as Mr. Cleveland's can possibly be to him, and in this connection I wish to say that paper friends and others for their kindly expressions of confidence in my integ-

"I assert on my honor that Mr. Cleve land was correctly reported in the inter-view in question. He was not misrepresented in any particular. I did not write out all that Mr. Cleveland said, but what I did write was a faithful and accurate report of his conversation. Much of what was omitted was simply unprintable in any respectable journal."

He then describes the circumstances attending the interview in detail. He was assigned by the city editor of the World to interview Mr. Cleveland in reference to an article published in the Sun to the effect that the ex-President was under medical treatment to reduce himself in fiesh. The article in question represented that he was gaining in avoirdupois at the rate of twenty-five pounds a month, etc.

Mr. Crawford then states that he called on Mr. Cleveland and was alone with him for nearly three-quarters of an hour, and that the latter talked freely. He said he had not seen the an hour, and that the latter talked freely. He said he had not seen the article; he never read the paper, he said, and would not touch it with a pair of tongs, and I gave him verbally the gist of it. Mr. Cleveland straightened himself up and made use of a profanc expression reflecting on the chastity of Mr. Dana's mother. (This was omitted from the published interview.) Mr. Cleveland then launched out into a vigourous denunciation of the editor of the Sun. He said he was a blackguard vagabond and dastardly scoundrel. He also characterized him as "a senile liar and thief," with the addition of a profane prefix. Several other profane words figured in Mr. Cleveland's re-marks, but none of them, of course, were nublished.

After twenty minutes further conversation Mr. Cleveland wrote the following, which is the first paragraph of the published interview:
"I have not," said Mr. Cleveland,

"seen the article you refer to, and if it appears nowhere else but in the Sun here is not the least chance of my seeing it. Of course the entire thing is a lie, without the least pretext to excuse I judge from what you say that the cenerable editor of the Sun supposes that he has at last hit upon a subject which can be used to annoy me. this he is mistaken. He must be his own judge of social decencies and pro-prieties. I am not sure that he should, at this time of life and in his apparently peculiar mental condition, be molested in his amusement."

This did not end the interview. Be fore Mr. Cleveland took up his pencil to write anything, he had said in sub-stance much of the matter contained in lication I inserted it as following his written paragraph. All of the matter contained in the following paragraphs took place in the first stages of the in-

"I do not care," Mr. Cleveland added, "how much I am criticised for my pub-lie acts. That is perfectly legitimate, and I recognize the right of every man to differ on public questions. There is a line, however, it seems to me, where criticism and abuse should stop. The man who invades the privacy of a fam-The ily and indulges in coarse and wanton attacks on private citizens is no better than a highwayman. He places bim-self on the level of the blackguard, and his vulgarities can have no weight with decent people."

Regarding the frequent personal attacks upon himself in the columns of the Sun, Mr. Cleveland said that, while he never saw them, every time one appeared a dozen crank a, more or ould write to him about it.

"Whenever I receive these cranks' letters," said Mr. Clevela d. "I know that the senile llar and thef, Dana, has been at it again. That is the only way I keep track of his mental ravings. The object, I suppose, is to annoy me and my friends."

Mr. Cleveland then alluded to his wife, and said that Mr. Dana had not confined his attack to himself. He made war on women as well as men. The attacks on Mrs. Cleveland had not been made openly or directly, but by Mr. Dana's favorite method, innuendo and indirection. Much of the matter consisted of alleged praise of Mrs. Cleveland, with the Idea of making a contrast to his (Mr. Cleveland's) disadvantage. Cranks were sure to send Mrs. Cleveland clippings, and they annoyed her very much. Mr. Cleveland said distinctly: "That old thief, Dana, has not hesitated to drag my wife's name into his scurrilous attacks. A man who makes war on women is infamous." Mr. Cleveland spoke with considerable feeling in referring to the unwarranted use that had been made of Mrs. Cleveland's name by the maglignant editor. There was no language, he said, strong enough to characterize the conduct of such a man. If Dana was not in his dotage, with one foot in the grave, his senile ravings would attract more attention. The public is disposed to look with some leniency upon a man who had paresis. That was all that saved Dana from being held to a strict accountability for his atroclous

In conclusion Reporter Crawford declares that nothing was said by Mr. Cleveland to the effect that he regarded any part of the interview as private. 'I have had several years' experience as a newspaper writer and interviewer. and this is the first time. I believe, one of my interviews has been disputed.

For five shares of Columbia Fire Insurance the highest price yet reached was realized. It brought 10 ex-divi-dend, which was paid on the 1st of May. The success of the Columbia is evidence of what able, industrious and influential men can accomplish by de-termined effort. It is quite probable that the dividend just paid—but 20 cents per share, 4 per cent, on $5, the par value of the stock for the half year since November—will be the last at so small a rate. The surplus now so nearly equals $100,000, the amount of the original capital, that 20 per cent dividends may be expected, which, barring extra losses, will still leave something to augment the large reserve.

The offerings of the United States Electric Light stock continue very small. All the floating stock appears to have been used in an attempt to hotd down the price. This explains why it is so desirable that those seeking cheap stock of this kind should send their orders to the board. The "Curbstone Brokers" have no desire to register fic titious values, it may be presumed; they were getting 117;, but are out of the market now apparently. The only sale yesterday of Electric Light stock was of 10 shares at 116. At this price, taking off the accumulated earnings at 8 per cent, since April 1, the purchase will yield the investor, net, 7 per cent. much more than double what many other stocks, which are hazardous, which this is not will yield. It is absurd to think this stock -will not go very much higher as it is one of the easiest stocks to carry on the list. A loan of $10,000 was made on 100 shares yesterday at long time at 5 per cent, per annum. The borrower pays 5 per cent, and receives 7 on the market

An interesting and startling tale of delayed delivery, to put it mildly, of but 10 shares of this stock, which was sold on the board as long ago as last Friday, might be told. Charity suggests the explanation that the seiler is too busy with weightier matters, but it is indicative that Electric Light stock is no longer plentiful. While the buyer is in no danger of not getting the stock, it is hardly business-like that such important matters should be delayed. It is noteworthy how readily the public interpret the Exchange methods of holding down the quotations on certain stocks, Graphophone, for instance. Yesterday a novice, who has been watching the market on this stock, with the hope of getting some at a low price, in scanning the sales tor a few days back, remarked with a sigh: "It is only when there are free offerings of Graphophone stock that the price goes up." The opposite was the case yesterday when there was no stock at the board, the quotations fell off to but 15 bid, 15; asked for 50 shares, against sales on the previous day at 154. To compete for 50 shares and run up the price would simply lessen the probability of larger lots being sent to the Exchange for sale. There is a growing confidence in Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone stock, and the bid was advanced to 71

Takes Care of Herself. Dr. Helen Densmore, who sailed yesterday on the Etruria for her regular dose of sea air, is one of the most extraordinary women in New York, regarding her habits of life, say the New York World. "I keep well," she said on the steamer deck, "by the vigi-lant study of cause and effect. The sick. The second trip I made with a cabinet of medicine that intelligent friends prescribed. I tried them all and nearly died. The third voyage I made on an empty stomach, abstaining from food for forty-eight hours. We had fine weather, and I spent the days in a steamer chair, filled my lungs with sea air and slept like an infant at night. My menu for the remainder of the trip consisted of fruits and warm drinks. Now I never suffer the least inconvenience on the sea, but the reason is due to my abstinence from solid foods. On land I subject myself to periodical fasts of from three to ten days. This rests the whole system, and after it I am a new woman, with clearer vision, better health, brighter color and keener faculties. I never take a dose of medicine internally. All diseases other than those of heredity are the result of stomach disorder. When I feel distress of mind I drop my work, take a warm bath and get rested. If the distress comes from bad digestion I drink hot water, a pint face of the body, and copious draughts of warm water flush the organs and remove from the membraneous lining the waste material that will otherwise polson the blood." Dr. Densmore has her own ideas, too, about dress. She doesn't wear whalebone, rubbers or petticoats in any shape or form, and it is a fact worthy of remark that there is not a single white article in her family wash, barring handkerchiefs, table linen, pillow cases and towels. She sleeps on woolen sheets in winter and pongee silk in summer, and her bedroom window is wide open, regardless of the weather, extra covering supplying the necessary warmth. Two Classes That Are Nuisances and Should Be Suppressed, Eugene Field in the Chicago News.

Europe seems to be infested with two distinct classes of Americans-the one quite as disagreeable as the other. The first class is represented by the man who usually asserts his Americanism upon every occasion. This vulgar creature makes a practice of finding fault with everybody and everything; as soon as he arrives he wishes he were home again; he swaggers and bloviates, snarls and brags, and, in short, is always so loud that (although he represents only a small class of his countrymen) he has come to be accepted as a type of all.

The second class of disagrecable Americans is composed of those who not only hear with seeming satisfaction, but also indorse with emphasis, every disparaging remark passed upon the United States by the foreigners. This class is to be met with in London-in fact, the English are the only Europeans who make a practice of continually succeing at the Government, the people and the customs of the States. seems to be a short sighted and foolish

GOSSIP OF THE SPORTS.

NEWS OF THE BALL FIELD, RACE TRACK AND PRIZE RING.

No Comes Vesterday... The Status of the Atlantic Association - What Should Be Done-Young and Hagan Spar To-Night-General Notes,

The rain yesterday prevented all the scheduled Atlantic Association games and those of all the other associations, with the exception of two games at Chicago, were prevented for the same reason.

To-day the Washingtons go to Newark and begin a series of three games, It has never met this team, and so there is no basis of comparison between the teams except where both have played the same team. Figuring on that basis, Washington ought to be able to secure two of the three games, for the men are playing well together and the pitchers are all in first-class trim. Phillips will probably go into the points to day for the local team and a victory can be confidently counted on.

While the Washingtons have been away extensive repairs have been going on at Atlantic Park. The entrances to the grounds have been changed, so that hereafter the audience will enter the grounds from the grand stand. The main entrance will be where the bicycle shed now is, and under the stand for those who patronize the bleaching boards, while the grand stand spectators will go directly into the stand from the On the West side of the stand a system of shutters have been put up to keep out the sun, which was a constant source of annoyance to those who occu-pied seats in the lower end of the stand.

In this connection President Hewett might make another improvement by putting a railing around the press seats. The regular scorers find themselves crowded out almost daily by out-siders, who take their seats and act as if they were insulted when asked to move. There is barely sufficient room for the regular newspaper men, let alone other people, who have no business there, crowding into them.

The Atlantic Association seems to be in a bad way. Worcester still talks of going out, Newark is to transfer its games to Trenton and Wilmington is rapidly approaching dissolution. For an association that started out under the most favorable auspices, and with every promise of a highly successful season for each club, the rapidity with which a contemplated breaking up has come is remarkable. There is but one thing for the Association to do and that be done quickly. Every team should assist the weaker ones, and so put them on an equality of playing strength which would result in making them financially able to carry on the

Or, if this should not be feasible, the Association, sooner than allow any of its members to drop out should take hold of the team itself and run it throughout the season. By no means allow the Association to be continually changing its membership. On Saturday night Young will meet Ryan. An effort is being made to have Mike Raedy go against Hagan, and the set-to will probably occur to-morrow night.

Jack Hopper will return from New York on Saturday accompanied by several of his friends from that city who will assist at the big benefit to him next not fight, so the match is off. The Young Sullivan fight was not arranged last night as was expected it would be. The men, however, will get together to night and endeavor to agree upon the terms of the battle. Sullivan has met some pretty good men in his time and defeated them, and if he and Young should get together a rattling good mill will result.
